

2013 Interdisciplinary Contest in Modeling®

Press Release—April 5, 2013

COMAP is pleased to announce the results of the 15th annual Interdisciplinary Contest in Modeling (ICM). This year 957 teams representing institutions from six countries participated in the contest. Five teams were designated as OUTSTANDING WINNERS representing the following schools:

- Northwestern Polytechnical University, China
- SSE, Beijing University of Posts and Telecommunications, China (INFORMS winner)
- Peking University, China
- Zhejiang University, China
- Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, NY

This year's contest ran from Thursday, January 31 to Monday, February 4, 2013. During that time, teams of three students researched, analyzed, modeled, and communicated a solution to an open-ended interdisciplinary modeling problem. The 2013 ICM was primarily an online contest, where teams registered and obtained contest materials through COMAP's ICM Website.

This year's problem involved building a network model for Earth's health. It required teams to understand concepts from the physical, informational, biological and social sciences to build an effective model for this complex phenomenon. The problem contained many multifaceted issues to be analyzed and had several challenging requirements for innovative scientific and mathematical modeling and analysis. In addition to network modeling and analysis and data collection and mining, the teams had to explain the potential of tipping point thresholds and state changes in the future health condition of planet Earth and identify how the model could be used to help policy makers make informed decisions. This year's problem continued the ICM theme of network science for a second year. The problem also had the ever-present ICM requirements to use thorough data analysis, creative modeling, and scientific methodology, along with effective writing and visualization to communicate their teams' results in a 20-page report.

A selection from the Outstanding solution papers will be featured in The UMAP Journal, along with commentaries from the problem author and judges. All the members of the 957 competing teams are to be congratulated for their excellent work and enthusiasm for scientific and mathematical modeling and interdisciplinary problem solving. This year's judges remarked that despite the challenging problem with myriad difficult tasks, the quality of the modeling, analysis, and presentation was extremely high.

2013 ICM Statistics

ICM is associated with COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling (MCM), which was held during the same weekend. ICM is designed to develop and advance interdisciplinary problem-solving skills in science, technology, engineering, mathematics (STEM) and the humanities, as well as competence in written communication. Over the years the ICM problems have included topics in environmental science, biology, chemistry, resource management, operations research, information science, public health, and network science. Each team is expected to include advisors and team members who represent a range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary interests in applied problem solving and modeling. Next year's problem will once again involve a problem in network science as its topic theme. This is an emerging area of interest and advancement for society and relevant to the future of the student contestants. To obtain additional information about the ICM and to obtain a complete listing of all team designations, please visit the ICM Website at: www.mcmcontest.com, or contact COMAP at: mcm@comap.com.

Major start-up funding for the ICM was provided by a grant from the National Science Foundation (through Project INTERMATH) and COMAP. Additional support is provided by The Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS). COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling and Interdisciplinary Contest in Modeling are unique among modeling competitions in that they are the only international contests in which students work in teams to find a solution. Centering its educational philosophy on mathematical modeling, COMAP uses mathematical tools to explore real-world problems. It serves the educational community as well as the world of work by preparing students to become better informed—and prepared—citizens, consumers, workers, and community leaders.
