   (Ben Fusaro Award 1919022)
Shanghai Tech University, China, (ASA Data Insights Award)
Sichuan University, China
Southeast University, China
Tsinghua University, China
University of Colorado Boulder, CO (3), USA, (AMS Award 1900577)
   (INFORMS Award 1901213)
University of Electronic Science and Technology of China, China (2)
University of Maryland, MD, USA, (AMS Award)
Virginia Tech, VA, USA, (INFORMS Award)
ZJU-UIUC Institute, Zhejiang University, China, (INFORMS Award)
Western Washington University, WA, USA, (Finalist MAA Award)
The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, TN, USA,
   (Finalist Frank Giordano Award)

This year's contest ran from Thursday, January 24 to Monday, January 28, 2019. During that time, teams of up to three undergraduate or high school students researched, modeled, and submitted a solution to one of three modeling problems. The 2019 MCM was primarily an online contest. Teams registered, obtained contest materials, and downloaded the problem and data at the prescribed time through COMAP's MCM Website.

The 2019 MCM problems represented interesting scenarios for contestants, each offering a dimension of mathematical modeling that was unique. The authors of problems A, B, and C are Dr. Kelly Black, Dr. Robert Burks, and Ms. Marie Samples, respectively.

The A problem asked teams to consider the ecological ramifications of fiction coming to life by posing a world in which dragons exist on the Earth. What characteristics would they have? How would they behave? What and how much would they eat? Does it matter where they live? These were just a few of the many aspects teams had to model and analyze to understand and communicate the impact of these fictional creatures living and thriving among humans. Time dynamics were implicit in this problem, which increased the mathematical challenges that teams faced.

The B problem asked teams to select, configure, optimally pack, geo-position, deploy and operate a set of midsize (group 2) unmanned aerial vehicles (UAV) that would supplement existing relief medical supply chains on Puerto Rico. Once beyond identifying effective 'DroneGo' system configurations, teams were required to plan flight paths, schedules, and supply lift details throughout the island while conducting visual road reconnaissance and damage assessment to aid disaster relief operations. Implicit to this problem were two NP-hard problems involving 3D container packing optimization, thereby causing teams to adopt clever heuristics to address this aspect of the problem.

The C problem involved teams in a current epidemic involving human use of opioids and narcotic analgesics in the U.S. Forensic information for drug identification and counts for all counties in 5 adjoining U.S. states was provided by the National Forensic Laboratory Information System (NFLIS-DEA). Using this data, teams were asked to build a mathematical model capable of both assessing how severe the unabated problem could become in the future and to regress in time to possibly identify counties in which first use occurred. Teams were then asked to examine seven years of socio-economic factors associated with these same 5 states to determine which, if any, of these factors were linked to trends in these data, and to modify their initial model to include these as appropriate. Finally, teams were asked to combine insights and results from these two efforts to suggest effective strategies for combatting this epidemic while using their model(s) to test these strategies.

A selection from the Outstanding solution papers will be featured in The UMAP Journal, along with commentaries from the problem authors and judges. All 14108 of the competing teams are to be congratulated for their excellent work and enthusiasm for mathematical modeling and interdisciplinary problem solving.
